It's A Record!

Two new enrollment records were on the St. Mary's College registrar's books this week as registration of new and old students drew to a close.

The largest freshman class in the 83-year-old history of St. Mary's, 473 men, brought the total registration to 821 students, thus shattering the former mark of 680 set in the fall of 1932.

Students from more than a dozen states, Vancouver, the Philippines and Hawaiian Island are registered at St. Mary's, Brother Julian, F. S. C. registrar, announced.

This year's freshman class is the largest since the fall of 1930 when 299 freshmen were registered, Brother Julian said.

Of the total thus far enrolled, more than 500 are resident students occupying four resident halls on the campus. The remainder commute from Oakland and San Francisco vicinities.

Jubilant over the record enrollment, Brother Austin, F. S. C., St. Mary's president, predicted the enrollment would be still further increased when new freshmen are accepted next January.

In pre-war years, enrollment of new students for the spring semester was not encouraged. However, the practice was adopted during the war and will continue next January, Brother Austin announced.

Frosh Welcome Dance Next Week Will Open Busiest Social Season in Years

Saint Mary's social season will be inaugurated on Saturday evening, September 28th, when the Sophomore class sponsors its annual Freshman Welcome Dance in the Spanish Room of the Hotel Claremont in Berkeley.

Al Hackett and his orchestra, an aggregation which has been featured in the larger summer resorts of the Bay Area, has been tentatively engaged for the evening's dancing.

The annual Freshman Welcome Dance is a traditional informal affair sponsored by the second year men for the incoming students to introduce them to the campus social life.

Bids for the dance will sell for $2.00 and may be purchased from Truetlen Sperry, president of the Sophomore Class and chairman of the dance, or from a committee which will be announced at the beginning of next week.

Purchase of the freshman "dink" by new students will entitle them to a bid and to admission to the dance.

The no corsage rule will be in effect, as is the custom at all St. Mary's dances, and the affair will be informal.

"We're expecting a record crowd," prophesized Chairman Sperry. "It's the first dance of the year. Bids are reasonably priced, and everyone will be assured of a good time."

McTigue Is Back With The Band

"McTigue is back and Saint Mary's got him."

The veteran Saint Mary's bandmaster, Joe McTigue, '31, is reorganizing the band which was dropped during the war. A big turn-out is expected and all students who are interested in playing in the band are asked to file their names this week with the office in Galileo 3.

The band, a feature at all Gael sports events will play for all the Sain Mary's football games in the bay area this fall and arrangements are being made for the trip with the team to Los Angeles for the UCLA game on November 1.

First rehearsals will be held here this Sunday afternoon.

Juniors Plan 1947 'Gael'

Next spring will see the first "Gael"—Saint Mary's yearbook—in four years. Plans are now being made by Junior class officials to select an editorial staff to begin work on the publication.

A meeting of the class will be held next Thursday, according to President Frank Lazio. At that meeting, an editor or editors will be elected, and further plans drawn up.

The Gael, by tradition, is the responsibility of the Junior class. All financial and other arrangements are completed by them alone, under supervision of a faculty moderator.

The book itself is intended to portray student life from year to year. The last issue appeared in May of 1942. War conditions made it impossible to publish the Gael in the intervening years.

Past Gael issues have featured illustrations and photographs of every phase of student life. Each student's picture will appear on its pages, according to tradition. Each organization on the campus will have its membership pose for the shutter man also.

The Gael is financed by the Junior class, through advertising and subscriptions.

RECORDER'S NOTICE

BROTHER AUSTIN

Saint Mary's Men of 1946:

After four years of curtailments and limitations, Saint Mary's College again opens its doors to you and extends to new and old a most cordial and sincere welcome. We are glad to incorporate the new arrivals into our campus family and we are happy to see so many old faces back again amongst us to resume their interrupted education.

Enrolling in college, at the present time particularly, is an event in the life of a young man; it may even be considered a portent of things to come, because of what college is supposed to do towards making a man fit and capable to face the complex problems entwined in the very texture of life. College is supposed to give us the "know how" of life, rather of our own life, because the problem is going to be within ourselves, and what we are as men is going to decide what we are going to do, and what sort of role we are going to play in the great world.

To live is to do and to be; to do in order to be. Though being is more important than doing, yet doing takes precedence. For instance, we must think and act rightly, that is virtuously, if we are going to be the kind of people we wanted to be in our better moments.

In the depths of our souls somewhere there lies buried the seed of the ideal, of the good person, the successful man of affairs, the religious or social leader we hope to be some day. College will help us towards the realization of that dream; it may even inspire us with entirely new ideals, new goals, new views on life far beyond anything we had hitherto considered; it may, perchance, open up a whole new world to us, and we shall be fortunate indeed if it does.

To enter this world, we must do. Doing comprises three phases: Observation, Action, Resolution. We must read, listen, think and appraise; we must perform those things that are habitual to right-living people and which bear the marks of respectability, consideration for others, and reverence towards God; we must resolve, that is, after clarifying and correcting our views, we should set ourselves a purpose, a worthy life-goal for which to strive.

It is well to reflect that success in life actually means success with ourselves, and failure

Parmisano Gives Year's Social Program at Ex-Council Meeting

Money for Collegian Jeep Also Takes Up Time in First Ex-Council Meet

A social calendar for this semester was presented to the executive council yesterday at their first meeting, held in Dante 101.

Disccussion of Collegian financial management and intramural sports, as well as initiation of freshmen, took an important place at the meeting.

STANLEY PARMISANO

With today's meeting, the Student Body opens officially and formally its 1946-47 school year, a year which in regard to enrollment is the greatest in the history of Saint Mary's College, and in regard to student activity promises to be one of the College's busiest and most fruitful years.

It is fitting and proper that words of welcome occupy a primary position in this my first address to the Student Body. Accordingly, I here extend to every student a welcome that is earnest and sincere.

It is my hope that the coming two semesters will be successful ones, not only for the Student Body in its entirely, but for each of you in particular.

Your purpose in coming to college is primarily to achieve an education. There are two means the College employs in placing that education within your grasp. They are the curricular and extra-curricular activities of the campus. The former, which are mainly your studies, are sponsored by the administration. The latter, composed of socials, dances, campus clubs, and other organizations are sponsored and conducted directly by the Student Body. Both these types of activity are essential to your education, and accordingly, both should be treated with the fervor of an enthusiastic student.

And so it is that as Student Body president I now call you to your duties. In all fairness to yourselves as also in all fairness to your fellow students you must cooperate in the full program offered by the College. Study, of course, but also take an active part in the extra-curricular activities that are offered you.

Soon, after these first days of confusion and initiation have passed, meetings of the various campus organizations will be held. I urge every student to join at least one club, attend its meetings, and do all he can to make his the best organization on the campus. I urge every student to attend as many socials, rallies, and dances as he can.

Soph Prexy Trude Sperry announced yesterday that there will be a meeting of the sophomore class today at 12:30 in front of the chapel to acquaint all day students with details of the initiation plans. A meeting for resident students was held Wednesday evening.

Brother Julian Is New Registrar

After an absence of nine years, during which time he was Principal of Cathedral High School, Los Angeles, Brother Julian has returned to St. Mary's College where he will again assume the duties of Recorder.

He succeeds T. J. Twomey, who became veterans' Service Director.

'Radio Workshop' Will Air Student News and Views This Semester on KROW

The "Radio Workshop", a weekly presentation of the associated Students of Saint Mary's College, goes back on the air in a new fifteen minute program beginning early in October. St. Mary's College has completed arrangements this week with radio station KROW, Oakland to resume the broadcasts which were suspended in 1942 because of the war emergency.

The program will consist of news and features with campus personalities of the college administration, faculty and student body apeparing at regular intervals.

A planeer among rpograms sponsored by college student, the "Radio Workshop" has a record of one of the outstanding series of radio projects in its field.

The broadcasts have produced such prominent men in radio as Bob Fouts, who is rated among the most popular sportscasters of the area. Bob's sports schedule at radio station KYA includes the "Racing Round-up" "Sports Final" and "Ins and Outs" his favorite, aired six times a week at 6:30 p.m. Robert McAndrew, '32 of Hollywood, an NBC radio executive is also former "Workshop" producer. Other Saint Mary's men who made their way in radio after leaving the "Workshop" production are Cliff Naughton, staff announcer for KFSO and Richard Vail now on the staff of a Fresno station.

Our 'First Line of Defense' Has Left Moraga Valley—Ain't It Wonderful?

By MARCO SMOLICH

Gone are the days when a befuddled student of Saint Mary's could not turn a corner without running into a Commander, or perhaps into a sharp platoon of young men in ragged jerseys, or perhaps even into a Lieutenant (jg) when the situation got rough.

Gone are the days when collegiate intellectuals were unceremoniously awakened at a quarter to dawn by the coarse voice of a squad leader shouting, "Hup, two, t'ree, fouh!"

Yes indeed, even the days are gone when a hungry student would inevitably be forced to wait fifteen or twenty minutes at about 1815 while platoon after platoon of blue-jerseyed fliers-to-be peeled off in front of the mess hall.

Our First Line of Defense has left Saint Mary's College!

The Navy arrived midst Moraga's hills in May, 1942, and officially commissioned the campus as the Saint Mary's Pre-Flight School on June 10. The course emphasized physical education purported to make the cadets men of mighty strength and quick reflex.

Obstacle courses and trampolin nets were erected almost overnight, while virtually perfect specimens of masculinity in snappy blue garb led groups of eager air enthusiasts through their rigorous paces.

While all this was going on, Corsairs and Hellcats zoomed over dormitories at various hours of the day, missing the roofs by an inch and one-half. Cadets would gaze into the sun and identify them as "MTB's or P-47's!"

The Navy Pre-Flight School graduated over 15,000 cadets before its decommissioning on June 30 of this year, an enviable record of which everybody connected with the program is justly proud.

An outstanding athletic system was organized, featuring the Air Devils, composed of numerous former All-Americans and professional stars who trampled the opposition in baseball, basketball and football. A few of the luminaries who played for the Pre-Flighters during their three years at Moraga were Angelo "Hank" Luisetti, one of the nation's greatest hoopsters; Joe Ruetz, Ed Manske, Dale Gentry, Frankie Albert, Bruce Smith and Nello Falaschi of gridiron fame; and Charley Gehringer, Bill Wight, Ray Perry and Billy Rigney of the diamond sport.

During the Navy tenure, college facilities were restricted generally to the eastern side of the campus. Athletes found the going rough, as the gridders rehearsed across the tracks, the hardwood gladiators trekked to Accalanes, and the baseball aspirants waited till the Navy finished.

Paths were not rosy nor was everything a bowl of cherries at the war-time Saint Mary's that allowed use of its properties for the training of men to win the war.

The Navy, however, spent in the neighborhood of $2,000,000 upon the campus, some of which improvements the school will keep permanently. Much shall be torn down inasmuch as the upkeep is not worth the keeping.

Success, 'tis said, comes not without hardships!

But, children, things are not too different, afterall. Now, when turning a corner, beware that you do not run smack into an aggregation of burly figures sporting red beenies.

And the chow line! Let's not talk about that!

Taps for Pre-Flight

A small detachment of Navy men, flanked by college officials, stand at attention as colors of Saint Mary's Navy Pre-Flight School are hauled down for the last time on June 30.

Decommissioning ceremonies on that date formally closed the four-year stay of the Navy on the college campus.

We don't wanna start a rush—but . . . !!

'Way back in the wilds of the Administration Building corridors, there is a shiny new infirmary. And in that sanctuary of peace and light there sits the answer to a sprained ankle's prayer . . .

Georgia is her name—Georgia M. Winchester, R.N., to be exact.

She can give you mercurochrome for your battle scars from the coop and chow line—or if you just need a lift, and a new slant on life, a peek in the door will make the dullest day seem sunny.

Georgia replaces Mrs. Willa Lloyd as resident nurse on the campus; Dr. Leo R. Pedemont, M.D., continues as college physician.

Miss Winchester is a graduate of Franklin and U. C. hospitals in San Francisco, and was a nurse in the Navy medical corps during the war.

In the last war he taught in the Italian Naval Academy at Leghorn. He is the author of books and pamphlets on history and travel. During the recent war he taught languages and area studies in the V-12 program at the University of N. Carolina.

He was in close with military and Navy men of Mexico and received the Naval Legion of Merit from the Mexican Government. Mr. Clifford graduated from Annapolis in 1918, and was twice on the faculty of the Naval Academy, once as instructor in science and the other time as instructor in French. He also studied in France and holds a degree from the Sorbonne. He will teach French and Mathematics.

F. P. Davenport is a graduate of Texas Tech. and a research student at the University of California in the field of economics; he also did graduate work at Wayne University. During the recent war he saw service with the Army Air Corps. He will teach Economics.

J. C. Dyer was assistant comptroller at St. Mary's from 1933 to 1935; since that date he was auditor at the Christian Brothers establishment at Mont La Salle in Napa County. He is a graduate of the University of California and holds a C.P.A. He is now chief accountant at St. Mary's.

His specialty is the economic history of Spain. He taught at Bay Point High School prior to the war. He will be instructor in Economics at St. Mary's.

There will be several returning instructors to join the faculty in the spring and at the beginning of next fall semester.

Leaves of absence have been granted at least three faculty members. Their return next year will further strengthen the college staff.

cember 7 will finish the social activities for the semester.

Bills outstanding were brought up for payment, and a motion to that effect by Senior Ray Rugani was passed.

Treasurer Richard Montgomery brought up the question raised by Brother Anselm, school treasurer concerning use of a jeep purchased by the school. The Collegian has use of the vehicle at stated times, and Brother Anslem desire payment of part of the cost entailed by the Collegian.

Montgomery proposed purchase of a new jeep by the student body for that purpose. A committee was formed by President Parmisano to investigate the matter. Included are Rugani, John McDermott, Denis O'Connor and Jerry Murphy.

Intramural Manager Robert Cook gave a report on plans for securing the aid of the athletic staff in putting on intramural sports this semester.

Trude Sperry, sophomore class president, reported on initiation plans. Monday will begin the initiation, ending in an entertainment Wednesday night, and an athletic contest on Thursday.

The Frosh Welcome Dance Saturday evening will round out the initiation week.

Short History Of St. Mary's

Saint Mary's College, which celebrated its Diamond Jubilee in 1938, is one of the oldest Catholic institutions of higher learning on the Pacific Coast. It was dedicated in San Francisco by Archbishop Joseph Sadoc Alemany, O. P., in 1863. The Brother of the Christian Schools took over its operation in 1868, and for 70 years have determined its character and growth. Under the laws of the State of California the college was incorporated in 1872, and given a charter empowering it to confer degrees and to exercise all the other privileges of a university.

The campus of the college was moved from San Francisco to Oakland in 1889. Because of crowded conditions there, it was transferred again in 1928 to a 420-acre tract about 10 miles from Oakland. Here in the beautiful Moraga Valley ample scope for still further growth is provided.

During World War II and up until June 30, 1946, Saint Mary's College shared the facilities of its campus with one of the four U. S. Navy Pre-Flight Schools in the country. The Pre-Flight School was formally commissioned on June 13, 1942, although naval personnel had been on the campus since late April, 1942. On February 27, 1942, the late Frank Knox, as Secretary of the Navy, formally announced the choice of Saint Mary's College as one of the four naval Pre-Flight Schools.

Separate and distinct administrations governed the two institutions. The students of the College followed the usual civilian regulations under direction of the Christian Brothers, while the naval cadets were responsible directly to the military policy administered by officers of the United States Navy.

means inability to solve our intimate personal problems. We are told that college should prepare leaders, but no man can lead others rightly who does not endeavor with sincerity and perseverance to master himself. We will find at Saint Mary's College both inspiration and incentive, for a Catholic college is a reservoir of ideals and of spiritual power capable of leading us to the very highest goal. But we must contact this power through an inquiring mind and arm ourselves with a determination to try to live in accordance with the highest truth we know. We must be men of reflection and men of action.

Alumnus Nominated to High Legion Post—Turns It Down

A Saint Mary's man spoke his piece with dramatic effect at the recent American Legion State Convention in San Francisco.

Dick Vail, from Fresno, came up for nomination to the post of department commander after delegates voted the World War II veterans to keep nominations open until a World War II veteran was selected to run against the man already nominated for the post.

Vail, in his speech which brought "a thundering ovation" from the Legionnaires present, stated that he did not think he had the experience that his opponent had—and so declined the nomination in favor of Richard H. Chamberlain, of Oakland.

The action by Vail, a hero of the Fifth Air Force, paved the way for the unopposed election as department commander of Chamberlain.

The sudden flurry of opposition by the small group of younger veterans—which ended amicably—came when the slate of officers for 1947 was being nominated.

Names of Chamberlain, and a list of other officers, all unopposed, were offered. But when a motion was made to close the nominations. opposition developed from several Los Angeles delegates.

One speaker, George Kellogg, won adoption of a motion to hold the nominations open until the afternoon session, to give "younger members" a chance to voice their views, and put up a candidate of their own.

When the delegates trooped back into Civic Auditorium, after lunch, young Vail was nominated in opposition to Chamberlain. Then he dramatically declined. In his unity speech, he declared:

"We're young. There are many things we feel must be done, of course. I lack experience. I lack a lot of things. I lack the ability to do the best things for the department.

"Shall we impetuously sweep in like lambs into a shearing now, or should we wait our own turn, to come?"

Then he bowed out, in deference to the man who, he said, "should be our next department commander — Dick Chamberlain."

Retirement To Follow Fordham Trip

A trip to Fordham to watch the Galloping Gaels in action will be one Saint Mary's man's way of celebrating his retirement.

Joseph F. Cone, superintendent of postal finance for the Oakland Post Office since 1934, will sign his last payroll check this week as he retires fater 47 years' postal service on September 30.

And then after a two-week St. Mary's College excursion to Fordham University in October to watch the teams in their annual tilt, Cone plans to return to his home to devote more time to his hobby—stamp collecting.

"Sounds like a busman's holiday," the jovial 7-year-old Cone said. As part of his job, Cone has been responsible for $25,000 daily cash turnover.

While working as a clerk at the main San Francisco Post Office during the 1906 fire and earthquake, Cone left his Oakland home early on the morning of the day following the "quake and stayed in San Francisco for two weeks until things and people became organized and trans-Bay ferry travel was again normal."

While in the San Francisco division where he served for over 30 years, Cone was stationed at one time at the old Washington Street Chinatown Post Office. Then he could speak enough Chinese to "get along."

Cone was graduated from St. Mary's College in 1899 when the school—"The Old Brickpile"—was out on Broadway.

St. Mary's Club

It was very gratifiying to the Officers of the St. Mary's Club to see such a gala attendance at our first meeting held in our new hall at 110 Page Street on Monday August 19, 1946. Our worthy President, Frank Neary, presided in a very efficient manner; while our hard working secretaries, Hap Kennedy and Chester Alsford, handled the dues from the new members.

We missed our hard working Past President, Thomas Kennedy, at our last meeting. Understand he is on vacation at Richardson Springs.

There is a great deal of interest being manifested in the football excursions being sponsored jointly by the St. Mary's alumni and St. Mary's Club. Those of you who intend to make either one of the trips, should make your reservations early. Accomodations are limited.

Past President, and chairman of our Commissary Department, Thos. Shaughnessy, was quite thrilled upon being presented with his Past President's pin at our last meeting. Congratulations, Tom. You certainly deserve commendation, as you worked very hard for the interests of the Club during your term of office.

Who were the members of our Club that were reported as being lost during their trip to the College to attend our picnic last Sunday? Could it have been the fog which confused the signs along the route, allegedly put up by our Picnic Committee.

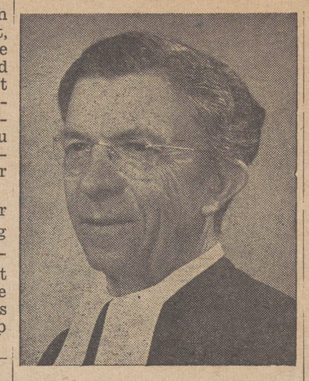
Gallery To Be Enlarged For Better Art Shows

Art at Saint Mary's, kept alive during trying war years by Brother Cornelius, is getting a new shot in the arm as the fall semester opens. Purchase of one more Keith painting to add to the college gallery, plus acquisition of additional gallery space, was announced this week by Brother Cornelius, head of the department.



BROTHER CORNELIUS

The large library hall of the wartime dormitory has been assigned the art department for use as a gallery. As soon as necessary alterations are completed, it will be opened to students and the public. Plans are also being made for a continuously changing show.

"The latest Keith that has been bought," he stated, "was bought at a considerable reduction—for $300 of which Mrs. Mary McHenry Keith gave $200. In addition, Mrs. Keith has destined a few of her best Keiths for the Saint Mary's gallery—so that it may be at least a worthy second to her grand collection.

"Two excellent little gifts have come from Fred Maxwell, manager of the Maxwell Galleries in San Francisco — portraits painted by Keith's first wife, Elizabeth Emerson Keith."

Eighty paintings by Keith are already featured in the college gallery, and a donation of $100 by Daniel J. Troy, '80, will be used in part to further Keith projects. The fund will also be used in preparing equipment to provide colored slides for the art appreciation course.

Brother Cornelius is author of a volume—"Keith, Old Master of California"—which details the life of the painter.

Art classes, forced into cramped quarters during the war, will return to the regular classrooms in Galileo Hall.

COLLEGIAN MEETING

The first SAINT MARY'S COLLEGIAN meeting of the fall semester will be held next Monday, September 23, at 12:30 in Administration 4.

For the benefit of newcomers, a guide will be on hand in front of the main office.

It is urged that all those interested, including artists, attend.

It has come to the attention of the editors that the owner and manager of this establishment, in other activities in the entertainment field, has followed policies publicly denounced as injurious and harmful to public morals.

Therefore, we do not feel that the Collegian, in advertising his projects, would be conducting itself according to the Principles in which we as Christians believe.

Therefore, we make this statement, of policy.

That this publication is pledged to support the Christian ideal—and that whatever is contrary to that ideal is to be combatted at every opportunity.

We do not solicit support of men or organizations whose actions indicate their antipathy to the Christian way of life.

to football games and last-minute passes,

Back to cramming for Ancient History,
or maybe Chem, another mystery.

Back to rooting for another score,
and wondering if you should study more,

Back to those rides in the autumn moonlight,
to burning of oil till long past midnight . . .

Since you're back for the biggest term of all time,
We're wishing you luck and ending this rhyme.

P.S. From head to toes,
from feet to nose,
It's always Roos

GAEL GOSSIP

By
MARCO SMOLICH
Collegian Sports Editor

The other day Homer Hogwash was rudely interrupted during a business affair by a well-dressed masculine figure that barged unknockingly into the room. Mr. Hogwash, it is well to remember, is president of Super-Terrif Pictures, Inc., and it is customary for people to knock upon his neatly engraved door before entering.

Even before Miss Wiggle, the prexy's highly efficient secretary, had time to start repowdering her nose, the aforementioned unceremonious gentleman was beating his fist enthusiastically atop his employer's mahogany, pre-war stock, desk.

"H. H.," he shouted, "I have just the sports story you've been seeking. I thought of it only last night. It is colossal. It has everything from touchdowns to love with fumbles in between. It is undoubt—"

INTRODUCING PHILNY JELAN

By this time Mr. Hogwash had regained some of his lost composure, methodically straightened his hand-painted tie and then sighed several times in such a manner that even an idiot would recognize him as prexy of Super-Teriff Motion Pictures, Inc. It wasn't until all this was accomplished that he interrupted his dynamic hireling.

"I shall forgive you, Marmaduke, for entering this office as you did. However, let it not happen again for it might prove embarrassing. . . . Hmmpff. . . . And now, let me have it slowly. Slowly, I say. The plot . . . the characters . . . everything. And it must be good. Remember, I am willing to spend as much as three million to make this the greatest sports drama ever filmed."

Too excited to seat himself in a nearby mahogany, pre-war stock, chair, Marmaduke continued: "Get this, boss, get this! The story opens just as Philny Jelan, that's the hero, receives word that Tearful U. has fired him as head football coach. Philny is disappointed and disgusted, you understand, because he gave all he had to ol' Tearful for many years and figured this was not the correct treatment that he was receiving. Of course, we give out with flashbacks to show that cliques and what-not had been conniving for a long time to oust him from his job.

THINGS TOUGH AT OL' MAINTSARY

"It is during the war, H. H., and things are tough all over. And things are that way with sports at ol' Maintsary College when the football coach decides to join the Navy . . . or maybe gets drafted. Anyway, the school needs a coach. Get it, boss? Well, they contact Philny Jelan by phone in what will no doubt be the greatest telephone scene since the one that helped that French doll in some Follies picture win the Academy Award. It is colossal, boss, simply colossal!

"Naturally, Philny accepts. Yes, he does. Then he arrives at ol' Maintsary where, as I said before, things are tough in sports. Particularly in football, boss, particularly in football. But Philny starts building teams. Maybe he doesn't have much luck the first couple of years . . . but pretty soon a couple of good players come his way and Philny Jelan soon amazes everybody with a sensational team. Just a bunch of kids, boss, just a bunch of kids. Some of 'em don't even shave, they're so young! But they got spirit, boss, thanks to ol' Philny who works with them, straightens 'em out, teaches 'em to play the game like it should be played, and meanwhile earns himself a reputation as America's outstanding coach.

"Just think, boss! What an angle! From oblivion to greatness. It is simply colossal!

ROMANCE AND WURMAN

"Like I said before, I got the romance business figured out, too. Never a movie without heart interest, eh, boss? He develops an All-American, let's call him Wurman Hedemeyer, whose home is in Hawaii. Get it, H. H.? We can work in scenes of Hawaiian bathing beauties doing the hula dance. What an idea! Wurman is in love with a sweet young thing in Hawaii. She remains there when he first comes to the States. See, it's a long distance love affair. Terrific, terrific, terrific! We wind it up with 'em getting married and then having a child, boy or girl, depending upon whom the Baby Actor's Union has handy for the part the day we shoot the scene."

Mr. Hogwash, who immediately thought of Miss Wiggle when his effervescent idea man mentioned romance, opened his mouth to speak.

"Wait, boss, hold it! That's not all. There's more, H. H., more! Then comes the post-war, just like now. Know what? You couldn't guess in fifty years. Listen to this! Ol' Tearful U. calls up Philny Jelan in another Academy Award telephone scene and before you can say Hita Rayworth the Tearfuls and the Maintsaries are going to play a football game. And what's even more colossal, H. H., is that the coach of Tearful U. is none other than the guy who was assistant to Philny Jelan a few years before. What an angle! Master versus pupil. Get it, boss?

"And then comes the game. The stadium is packed. Wurman Hedemeyer is there for ol' Maintsary but there are also a lot of other guys, all terrific when it comes to football . . ."

MARMADUKE'S ENTHUSIASM DIES

Suddenly Marmaduke's enthusiasm waned. Mr. Hogwash jumped to his feet . . . then sat down again thoughtfully. After all, he did not pay his idea men for waning enthusiasms. Anybody could have a waning enthusiasm . . . except an idea man.

"Come, come, Marmaduke, on with it. Who wins the game between ol' Tearful and ol' Maintsary? That is very important, very important."

Marmaduke's cheeks became wet with tears of desperation. He whimpered slowly, "Boss, I don't know who wins. Should it be Tearful? Or should it be Maintsary? It is a problem. I have 12 men and four women working on it at this very moment."

"A solution is imperative. Remember, Marmaduke, we must start shooting in ten days. That is when Hencer Spacy gets back from his vacation. He is very anxious to get back into the grease paint. A genuine trouper, indeed. But we must have a solution to the outcome of that game!"

SOLUTION WEEK FROM SATURDAY

His fists clenched till the kunckles were snow-white, Marmaduke pondered for a moment. "H. H., give me about a week and I'll have it. I guarantee a solution a week from Saturday. How about it, boss?"

The president of Super-Terrif Motion Pictures, Inc., hesitated. There was a certain pleading quality in the idea man's voice that was difficult to deny.

"That is satisfactory, Marmaduke. A week from Saturday you must tell me who wins between the Tearfuls and the Maintsaries. I shall mark the date on this calendar. And now, as you depart, kindly ask Miss Wiggle to step in . . . with her notebook."

All-American HERMAN WEDEMEYER of St. Mary's College

The Enemy: Uclans, Huskies, Dons Loom As Toughest Foes; Fordham, Bears Show Promise

Nevada Wolfpack Eager for Revenge; Andrejco, Ososki Return to Rams

WASHINGTON

The Huskies are loaded with talent and feature Arnie Weinmaster, 235 pound fullback who, according to Ray Flaherty, coach of the professional New York Yankees, will perhaps equal the great Bronko Nagurski. Coach "Pesty" Welch will be gunning for this game and his men will probably enter the fray as favorites.

ALAMEDA N.A.S.

Little is known about the Hellcats. The game is supposedly a breather on a tough Gael schedule, but you never can tell. The Alamedans seek to achieve the season's first major upset. Coach Charles Schuchardt employs the single wing and "T" formation offenses.

CALIFORNIA

The dark horses of the Pacific Coast conference, Coach Frank Wickhorst has a big squad from which to select varsity material. There are many returning lettermen, and the Golden Bear might growl much louder than expected. Billy Reinhard, Bob Edmonston and Bob Del Porto should gain lots of yardage for the Berkeleyites. The Gaels have yet to hand the Bears two consecutive defeats.

FORDHAM

Not much is known about the Rams, who did not play football during the war years. But Coach Ed Danowski has two fine backs returning in the persons of Steve Andrejco and Joe Ososki, plus a sturdy line. Experience will favor the Gaels, who should play before a 50,000 crowd.

NEVADA

The Wolfpack is out to gain recognition in major collegiate gridiron circles, and there would be no easier way of doing it than to knock over the Moragans. Wedemeyer, Cordeiro and Co. embarrassed the Nevadans, 39-0 last year, so Coach Jim Aiken has a definite revenge motive. This game will be hard fought.

U. C. L. A.

Coach Bert LaBrucherie's Bruins downed the Phelanites last year and would like nothing better than to make it two in a row. This game may decide the Pacific Coast championship, as the Uclans are picked to finish among the top heap in the Conference. The Westwood boys are loaded, so much so that Orv Hatcher, fine California halfback of a few years ago, is playing second string. Only the Rose Bowl clash outdrew last year's 84,385 crowd for this contest.

SANTA CLARA

The Broncos should not be counted out, even though they are starting anew after remaining out of collegiate competition during the war. Coach Len Casanova can cell upon a good first team, but reserves are doubtful at this stage. The "Little Big Game" will pack Kezar Stadium.

U. S. F.

This will be the season's regular finale for both teams and may decide the independent champion. The Dons expect to enjoy their greatest season, and have such able backs as Harmon Rowe, Vince Pacewic, Jimmy Ryan and Forrest Hall to pave the way, along with big Johnny Sanchez at tackle. A full house at Kezar will watch Coaches "Clipper" Smith and Jimmy Phelan match wits.

Moragans Add New Equipment Manager

Checking helmets, jerseys, pants, shoulder pads, etc., is far from a pleasant task, but Leo J. Bradley, the athletic staff's new assistant equipment manager, is filling the bill most capably.

Though he joined the Moragans this summer, already he is a popular man with the athletes.

Now making his home in nearby Lafayette, Bradley is a native of Lowell, Mass., and enjoyed a very happy moment recently when Joe Cronin's Boston Red Sox officially annexed the American League pennant.

JV Gridders Open Sked Next Friday

Tony Bilotti, head coach of the Junior Varsity, and his assistant, Johnny McDermott, have been sending their charges through tough drills and scrimmages the past week in order to ready the Gaelets for their tentative encounter against the Napa Junior College eleven next Friday, October 27, on the local campus.

The JV aggregation will have a schedule of six games. The slate is still in the arrangement stage and will not be officially announced by Bilotti till next week.

Coll, Ratto Return as Grid Aides

Phelan Starts Fifth Season As Gael Coach

By DICK SIGGINS

"Erudite, debonair James M. Phelan, the teacher of unorthodox, flamboyant football, fun to play, entertaining to watch," (thanks to Bill Bettencourt, director of public relations), has begun his thirtieth season of building football teams.

The man who "opened up" college football last year is tutoring his fifth Gael eleven. Phelan took over the Moraga Maestro's chair in 1942, just after Pearl Harbor.

COACHED FOUR SCHOOLS

The former Notre Dame quarterback and World War I veteran has been head coach at four schools—Missouri, Purdue, Washington, and Saint Mary's.

The chief aide of Head Coach Phelan will again be Martin "Marty" Kordick, who has gained national recognition for his teen-age, freshmen forward wall of 1945, a masterpiece of mentoring.

Marty won numerous honors as a center when he prepped at Belmont High School in Los Angeles.

ALL-AMERICAN GUARD

But as a sophomore at Saint Mary's he captured a starting berth at right guard and held that position for three years. He graduated with an AB degree after gaining All-Pacific Coast and second-string All-American laurels.

Upon graduation he became director of athletics at Cathedral High School in Los Angeles. Marty returned to his Alma Mater in 1940 as assistant coach.

EX-SERVICEMEN

Thomas J. "King" Coll has returned to Saint Mary's, this time as assistant coach. The 25-year-old coach played end on the 1940-41 Gaels elevens.

Tom graduated in 1943, joined the Marine Corps, and led an amphibious tractor platoon ashore when the Marines stormed Iwo Jima. He was discharged with the rank of first lieutenant.

Married and the father of a newly born baby girl, Tom lives in Vallejo.

One of the best centers on the Pacific Coast in 1942, Al Ratto, former San Francisco prep flash, has recently joined the Gael coaching staff.

Al played two seasons of sterling football with the Alameda Coast Guard Sea Lions in 1943 and 1944.

He worked out with Buck Shaw's San Francisco '49ers at the beginning of this season.

An unusual aspect as far as the new grid aides are concerned is that they both played alongside many of this season's Gaels, particularly while members of Phelan's thrice-defeated 1942 eleven.

Saint Mary's Club, Alumni Sponsor Three Grid Trips

The Saint Mary's Alumni Association and the Saint Mary's Club of San Francisco are sponsoring three football tours for Gael grid followers.

These include trips to Seattle for the opener against the Washington Huskies, to New York for the renewed intersectional battle with the Fordham Ram on October 19, and to Los Angeles for the game with the U.C.L.A. Bruins on Friday night, November 1, at the Coliseum.

However ,the team will fly to Seattle and New York.

For additional information on the railroad tours see or telephone either Gene Pometta, tour manager, Saint Mary's College, 'phone Moraga 4411, or Ray Lemieux, tour director, 474 Thirteenth Street, Oakland, 'phone Templebar 2121 (Local 4514).

Basketballers Trek To Midwest During Christmas Vacation

Bee Team Organized; 6'9" Center Arrives

In the fall a young man's fancy generally turns to chalk lines and pigskins, but Clarence "Swede" Andersen, Saint Mary's basketball mentor, is already looking ahead towards what may be one of the brightest seasons in Gael hoop annals.

The Moraga quintet has scheduled a road trip during the Christmas vacation that will take them as far as Peoria, Illinois. It will be the first such jaunt ever undertaken by a Gael team and will include nine games, two of them still in the tentative stage.

ROAD TRIP SCHEDULE

Announced by Coach Andersen and approved by the Saint Mary's Board of Athletic Control, the road trek schedule follows:

Dec. 16—U. of Wyoming, at Laramie.
Dec. 17—U. of Nebraska, at Lincoln.
Dec. 19—U. of Iowa, at Iowa City.
Dec. 20—Loras College, at Dubuque, Ia.
Dec. 21—Bradley Tech, at Peoria.
Dec. 23—(tent.) Oklahoma A. & M., at Stillwater.
Dec. 26—Phillips' 66 Oilers, at Bartlesville.
Dec. 27—(tent.) Tulsa U., at Tulsa.
Dec. 28—St. Louis U., at St. Louis.

The Gael five, which will open its season in the Oakland Auditorium on November 25 against the Oakland entry of the American Basketball League, will also make a trip to Reno, Nevada, to meet the Wolfpack quintet, and to Los Angeles or San Diego to tackle UCLA and perhaps another southern five.

"B" TEAM HOOPSTERS

In accordance with conference rules, varsity practice will not start till October 28. However, the Red and Blue will also field a "B" team, with its own schdeule, whose practice sessions will get underway immediately. Andersen desires that all those interested in playing "B" basketball turn out for the squad.

Meanwhile, the Moraga hoopsters welcomed back several prewar stars and many newcomers and veterans of last year's team.

NEWCOMERS

Among those who registered this week were Bill "Biff" Burke, All-Coast guard in 1943; Ronald Livingstone, 6'9" pivot man from Modesto Junior College; Don Dalton, San Leandro All-City ace; Bill Lau, who made All-City in a Lowell uniform in 1944; Frank "Cuddles" Kudelka, ex-Lowell star and more recently of Borlo Athletic Club; Frank Shannon, veteran of the 1943 squad, and Jerry Perich, husky center from Sacramento.

Returning from the 1945 quintet are Trude Sperry, Danny Galvin, Jack Rial, Jack Hansen, Ray White and Dick Piedmonte. Tony Winn, Henry "Hank" Van Giesen and Paul Crowe, members of the grid varsity, will don hardwood toggery upon completion of the football schedule.

Rial and Sperry led last year's quintet in point-making, while Danny Galvin was a bundle of hustle and an excellent floor man. The oldsters plus the newcomers should make it rough for the opposition.

Gael Lettermen Now in Service

Six lettermen of last season's Galloping Gael varsity have been inducted into the service since the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl game.

The Army now lays claim to Harvey Adair and Al Beasley, who handled the first-string tackle berths for the Whiz Kids; Frank Bryant, reserve guard, and Charles "Spike" Cordeiro, one-half of the Gael hula-hula twins.

Don Schultz, pass-snagging flankman, has joined the Navy, while Wes Busch, great blocking fullback, is now wearing a Coast Guard uniform.

Virtually Every Position 'Open' as Moragans Prep for Husky Opener

O'Connor, Wedey, Verutti, Morales In Tentative Backfield; Newcomers Star In Scrimmage Sessions

With only five practice days remaining before the season's opener against the University of Washington Huskies in Seattle, October 28, Jimmy Phelan, silvery-thatched mentor of the Saint Mary's Galloping Gaels, still eyes critically the scrimmage sessions as varsity gridders vie for starting berths. The fact that a starting lineup has not yet been selected proves that competition has been so steady and close that approximately 20 players have opportunities to earn themselves opening assignments.

DENNIS O'CONNOR

While the New Orleans' Sugar Bowl eleven has been broken up, mostly due to the draft and voluntary enlistments, there still remains a definite Whiz Kid flavor, what with Denny O'Connor, Herman Wedemeyer, Paul Crowe, Don Adams, and Jess Prudencio cavorting in the backfield, and Henry Van Giesen, Ed Ryan, Dick Piedmonte, Dennis Murphy, Joe Zakarian and Vic Cuccia bolstering the line. All of the aforementioned earned letters last season.

VETERANS RETURN

The key to the team's success, however, might well be the manner in which the returning players, who have been away for as long as four years, take to the game. Much is expected of such veteran lettermen as Pete Bellani, Ray Clemons, Claude Menkee, Joe Suarez, Cliff Mattos, Bill McPartland, Bill Zambresky, Frank Carrillo, Tony Winn, Jerry Perich, Joe Ferem, Frank Callan, Gonzalo Morales, Jack Verutti, Roy Johnson, Ray Ahlstrom and Johnny Odisio.

Whatever the results of the games may be, spectators may rest assured that the Gaels will offer an entertaining brand of football, primarily designed, of course, to produce in the victory column. The traditional Notre Dame "T" will be used, with variations, including Phelan's Phantom Phlanker.

Last year's outstanding team threw the pigskin around with seeming reckless abandon, but with destructive results as far as the opposition was concerned. There is no good reason to expect any change in the style of offense this season.

Scrimmages have been hard fought and productive of unsuspected talent. Last Saturday, Glenn Bell, speedy halfback from Oxnard High School, broke loose for several long gains, while more than a few new linemen showed to good advantage.

TENTATIVE LINEUP

A tentative first team lines up as follows: ends, Van Giesen and Ryan; tackles, Callan and McPartland; guards, Suarez and Bellani; center, Cuccia; quarter, O'Connor; halfbacks, Wedemeyer and Verutti; fullback, Morales.

However, a second team could be called that would challenge the initial lineup in virtually every position, with Ray McWalters, Johnny Johnson or Carrillo at the flanks; Joe Rubio and R. V. Johnson at tackles; "Red" Schantin, Clyde Brown, Menkee or Clemons at guards; Jack Flagerman or Bob Fahland at the ball-hipping post; Ferem at quarter; Willie Modrcin and Crowe at the halfback positions, and Ahlstrom or Odisio at full.

AHLSTROM SHINES

In a recent skirmish against the "B" team, Ray Ahlstrom, who had been suffering from an ankle injury, showed old-time form on plunges through the line. Crowe, taking over for Verutti, who is favoring a sore foot ,demonstrated great speed and power, while Morales was doing his share from the bucking post .Rubio and Brown starred in the line.

Bill Johnson, fullback from Lafayette High School, looked good for the Bees.

Thus far, the most serious injury befell Jerry Perich, tall end who played for the Gaels in 1944. The Sacramento lad fractured a small bone in his right ankle during the initial scrimmage drill and is not expected to be ready for action for at least one month.

Verutti is still troubled with a sore foot but should be breaking through the Husky line a week hence.

WEINMASTER LOOKS GOOD

The opener in Seattle undoubtedly means a great deal for both elevens. Phelan and his former assistant, "Pesty" Welch, have yet to see their charges under actual fire this fall.

Arnie Weinmaster is hailed by Seattle scribes as the best-ever fullback, comparable to Army's great Felix "Doc" Blanchard. The big fellow, who tips the scales at 235 pounds, can run like a deer and with tremendous power. Sam Robinson is another lad upon whom the Moragans must keep their eyes glued.

From what practices have revealed, the Red and Blue Gallopers have a very versatile backfield. Wedemeyer, Crowe, Verutti and Morales can all be classified as triple-threaters. A packed house should be on hand to see if they can overcome favored Husky power.

Let's Get Interested!

Why are you reading this paper?

Your chances of seeing your name in it this week are very slim indeed—there must be some other reason than that. . . .

If you are merely curious, that is well and good. We appreciate your curiosity.

But if you are really interested in what is going on around these stuccoed halls, your interest can help all of us get more out of Saint Mary's.

You know—and I repeat this for the benefit of strangers to this valley—they call Saint Mary's "The Mother of Men." It is not because there are teachers here who can show you books on how to be happy—nor is it because you meet so many good friends around Dante and Galileo Halls while you are here.

It is because so many boys who come here, become "interested."

Interested in what?

Well, some boys become interested in classwork—some in athletics or art or dramatics—and in later years they return to these same halls to remember that it was at Saint Mary's that they did become MEN.

You could take a week off from your classes and look around this campus—and there would still be nooks and crannies overlooked. You could corner Brother Albert for a talk—so difficult a task!—and spend many days wondering at the things other men of Saint Mary's have done. There is hardly a battlefield—or a church—or a cause—in which you could not at some time discover a Saint Mary's man.

And so I ask you, why are you reading this paper?

What are you interested in?

In a few weeks we will have football all around us—dances and socials—rallies and all the rest of it. That ought to be very interesting—especially after a couple of years out among the Anopheles and Japanese: And after that will come basketball season and an expanded schedule that will put us on everybody's athletic map. And then there is the baseball season after that. . . .

Meanwhile, what are you interested in primarily?

I imagine the average freshman just out of high school is a bit leary of all the reports he hears about the veterans' invasion of the colleges these days. It must seem, from some of these reports, that he won't have a chance in classes against men five or six years older than himself, and with a wealth of experience in practical matters.

And there is more than one veteran who thinks college is going to be on the rough side, because he has been away from the books for a few years.

And that freshman—and that veteran—they're both right!

Why?

Because some of the characters from Karachi and Adak are going to be "interested"—out for blood—when it comes to cracking those books. That freshman is going to have to step on it to match that kind of competition for good grades. That is writing on the wall. . .

On the other hand, there are men who are afraid of meeting that printed page at close quarters again. Some of you are worried about that this minute. Frozen pedal extremities are not confined to foxholes by any means.

There is one answer for both problems—get interested!

How? First of all, ask yourself one serious question—and answer it truthfully: Why am I here?

If you don't know why, it is time to find out. Boys and men come to Saint Mary's—very, very few go away as they came. The boys become men, the men become better men. That's not fiction, but fact. If you don't expect to be better when you leave Saint Mary's you are literally planning to waste your time here. . . .

Your primary purpose is to become better—if you want to be a good bowler or a good golfer, you can't do it unless you are interested enough in the game, can you?

Is it any less logical to be interested in what you do here at aSint Mary's?

Think that one over. . . .

The Bystander

BY STANLEY PARMISANO

MIDNIGHT OF FRESHMAN REGISTRATION:

I thought lase semester when I had signed onto my column a final "30" that as the notorious Bystander I would write no more. But Fate, dressed in the black robe of ferocious Brother Henry, intervened, and with fast words of salesmanship that left this timid victim with a monologue of "but. . .but. . .but" changed the above mentioned "30" to a "27" or "28" and—well here I am again, for a couple of more columns anyway.

Right now, except for the few, idle card players and my retiring roommate—he's washing his teeth and gargling melodiously at the moment—the campus is asleep, sound asleep. The day has ben a tiresome one, and very depressing, I imagine, for those pathetic neophytes who have just struggled through the preliminaries of their tentative college career.

They've been standing in lines all day, most of them for ten and eleven hours. They've listened anxiously and patiently to veterans' administrators, treasurers, recorders, counselors, and dormitory prefects. They've filled out forms, forms, and more forms, and. . .now they're tired, dead tired, and now they're sleeping, sleeping, sleeping.

In some corner of the still campus a robust figure hugs an iron ball to his stomach. He dashes headlong, with leaping steps, for a thick, brick wall. He tilts his head and crashes through. Darkness for a moment and then. . .there is an open field—desolate. The man with the iron ball is striding across it, now with longer strides. There, close behind, runs another man, with wirey hands grasping and clutching after his precursor, gaining fast on him with every step. Finally one hand wins a hold, the other circles wide and embraces the carrier's waist. Down-slowly, slowly, both topple to the earth. There is a mad shout and a symbol clashes.

In another corner springs up a sumptous pavilion with ceilings of folding damask, pillars of richly carved marble, and floors carpeted with Persian rugs. A lone figure walks with a rickety step around the pillars, gazing with wondering eyes, and smiling, twitching lips at the splendor about him. He walks faster and faster, his eyes dilating more and more with each uncertain step. In a drunken spell he knocks against one pillar, recovers himself with a quick, backward step, and knocks against another. Then in a flash—a brilliant flash—all is a dizzy, blinding lustfully at a golden cornocopia laden and overflowing with rubies and silver and diamonds and pearls.

Another corner, more silent than the others—a tired, unsteady man ascends a ladder that reaches to the clouds. He climbs each rung with a weary but determined step. He stops and looks down-laughing teeth flash up at him. He frowns and looks up, and now he smiles and climbs on. As he advances, his step becomes more certain, his brow less damp. Higher, higher, higher, and now he is swallowed up in a fleecy cloud. A moment, an organ thunders majestically, trumpets sound, and an angel chorus sings.

The first dream is that of a student whose primary aim in college is sports. His ambition thus far in life is to distinguish himself as an athlete and gain the applause of the spectators. His love goes no farther than the stadium, the ball park, or the gym.

The second is that of the student aiming at worldly riches. His education sharpens his reason, makes him prudent; in short gives him the means to his end. He becomes the successful man of business, and gains, thereby, access to every plasure.

The third is the dream of a student who wishes knowledge and wisdom for the sake of knowledge and wisdom. Knowledge is man's crown of distinction. The student wishes to wear the crown well, and thus gain the respect and admiration of mankind.

REV. EDMUND MOSS

Dear St. Mary's Men:

You must have experienced the same thrill that I did when you beheld St. Mary's again, nestled in the protecting hills of Moraga. For those of us returning to the College after an absence of years, as well as for those glimpsing the school for the first time, the Chapel dominated the peaceful campus. How many times have those of you veterans visualized in your mind's eye the peace and serenity which you found in the Chapel? So many times in the muck and din of battle have you hoped and prayed for the opportunity to come back and kneel once again at that altar where so often before you received the Bread of Life. Perhaps you even vowed that if you ever returned to St. Mary's in one piece, you would not forget Him who saw you safely through.

If you veterans could preach a sermon to the new students coming to St. Mary's for the first time, you would tell the new men that St. Mary's has a glorious spiritual tradition based on devotion to Our Blessed Lady and Her Divine Son; that the trials and difficulties through which the College has successfully passed, were made easier by confidence in Almighty God. Finally you would implore them to avail themselves of the many golden opportunities offered for their own spiritual improvement during the days spent in the fostering care of St. Mary's, "the Mother of Men."

Yes, I am sure, this is the sermon you would preach to those about to begin their collegiate careers at St. Mary's.

BY BERT CALLEN

Some of you may think that the subject of funeral dirges is not the most fitting with which to start a new semester and to an extent I agree. It is doubtful whether most of us will be singing a Swan Song physically or academically for quite a while, but this particular story is too good to waive. It concerns a scene witnessed by a couple of soldiers who landed at Lingayen Gulf on Luzon in the Philippines early last year.

The actual invasion had been somewhat milder than expected and most of the first and second waves were met only with swarming eager Filipinos shouting a crossfire of 'mabuhay' and 'peectoree'. The two young men mentioned elsewhere in this masterpiece had therefore discarded their guns, sabers, ammunition clips and other unnecessary items and walked to a nearby patio munching upon some bananas a considerate Filipino had thought to bring with him.

As they drew near the first house of the village they were greeted with the plaintive familiar notes of a once popular American song bleating forth from a trumpet, guitar and broken clarinet. The orchestra was part of a funeral cortege that was moving toward them, bearing to his final rest a youth who had died two days previously.

The Americanos were astounded at the contrast between the scene and the song for they had not yet become accustomed to the almost childlike naivete which that particular people could sometimes assume. They stood open mouthed, not knowing whether to laugh or cry. Finally one turned to the other and said, "Sounds funny—kinda appropriate though, huh?"

"Yeah" replied the other, "it's appropriate awright; but 'Don't Get Around Much Anymore' will never sound the same after this."

"Well, there goes another pupil," said the professor as his glass eye went rolling into the sink.

They tell me that turnabout is fair play, so here goes.

It seems that an ambitious young fellow arrived on the campus yesterday with an idea of registering at Saint Mary's for his studies and went into the administration building for that purpose. He was advised that applications had been more than was expected, however, and that there was simply no way in which he could be accomodated—the College being crowded already. He stormed into the Recorders office and demanded an explanation and was told again that nothing could be done; that the faculty and administration were taxed to the limit as it was. But knowing the nature of things and stuff he glowered across the counter. "I suppose you know," he said indignantly, "that if I can't enroll here I shall be forced to apply at Santa Clara!"

"That is unfortunate indeed," replied Brother Julian, looking up from his file cabinet. "But you must remember—even our Good Lord was forced to accept a manger because the best hotels were filled up."

"Mama, do angels have wings?"
"Yes dear."
"Then can angels fly?"
"Yes dear."
"Well, this morning papa called nurse an angel; when will she fly?"
"Tomorrow, dear."

And so it goes, gentlemen, another year (?) of this silly dribble punctuating each week as it ends and trying to alleviate somewhat the drudgery of the desk's dead wood. I suppose, too, that now is as good a time as any to lend my welcome to the many that the new students have no doubt already received; I don't mean this flippantly but with a deep sincerity. For some of you may feel for a time a bit lonesome and lost amongst us and the subjects you will take. But all of you will find, sooner or later, that there prevails here an atmosphere of true amity.
